

Student Rambler...

Hello everyone and welcome to the November 2007 issue of the Student RAMbler! The cool weather is here and it is finally beginning to feel like autumn. In October, we had the Fall Fun Festival, the Homecoming game and dance, the Fashion Show 2007, the Fall Concert and, the Freshman-Senior sleepover. Now, as we look ahead into the month of November, many events are coming our way such as: Thanksgiving, the Lower School Thanksgiving Show, the winter sports teams, the FCD (Freedom from Chemical Dependency) program, and much more! Please feel free to e-mail me with any questions, comments, or possible article ideas that you may have. I am always open to new ideas!

Homecoming

On October 13, 2007, The Awty International School took on the Trinity Christian School. The bleachers were packed with Awty fans and the sidelines were filled with kids supporting our team! The majority of people there were wearing the Homecoming T-shirts to show their school pride, and the cheerleaders were churning out the cheers! Finally, after much anticipation, the Awty boys' varsity team took to the field. Thanks to the boys' skill and the combined cheering of cheerleaders and fans, Awty defeated Trinity Christian, pulling out an exciting 5-0 win. After the successful game, came the much awaited annual Homecoming dance. This year it was held in the dinosaur room of the Musuem of Natural Science. This year's theme was "Diamonds are Forever". Everyone looked absolutely glamorous for the event, showing off their "bling" and awesome dance moves! The Homecoming princesses were 9th grader Babette Hohrath, 10th grader Stephanie Cabrera, 11th grader Sana Qureshi, and the Homecoming queen was Sophie Peeters. Furthermore, for the first time in Awty history, there was a Homecoming king, with Phil Queller claiming the crown. Congratulations to all the ladies and the gentleman of the 2007 Homecoming Court! A victory for Awty and a fun dance to top it all off was a perfect way to end a crazy, fun-filled week of patriotism. Way to go varsity!

Also, this year a new contest was created involving the Awty teachers. Each teacher received a jar for the week and whoever filled his/her jar with the most money by Saturday won the contest. The reward, however, was having a pie thrown at your face, and the lucky teacher this year was Mr. Sload! It was quite a sight to see!

Halloween Just Got Better

Once again, The Awty International School held its annual Fall Fun Festival on October 20 on the soccer fields. All Awty families were encouraged to come and be part of this fun event!

Everyone who attended the festival had a blast! Pizza and soft drinks were available for lunch and there were a number of activities to do. There were moonwalks, a pie throwing contest at Dr. Watson's expense (haha), a rock climbing wall, a dunking booth with Mr. Quitzau as the victim, face painting, an alien maze, a jail booth, eggs filled with confetti, a country store, the infamous Haunted House, and much more! Plus people came dressed in all types of costumes such as Spiderman, fairies, ninjas, witches, ghosts, Spongebob Squarepants, etc.

The Fall Fun Festival was a success as always and it certainly got everyone pumped for Halloween!
